VOLUME 11. NO. 23

RHINELANDER, WISCONSIN, THURSDAY, JULY 13, 1893.

TERMS—$1.50 IN ADVANCE

D. D. Flanner was up from Wausau Tuesday.

Frank Wissler has been in town this week selling cigars.

Ed. Berry was at Minneapolis this week taking in the races.

Sheriff Ed. Brazell was at Eagle River Monday on business.

The Union band accompanies the excursion to Tomahawk Lake Sunday.

The lumber mills of Rhinelander paid forty thousand dollars to their employees Monday.

St. Augustine's Guild will meet with Mrs. John Lawson next Wednesday afternoon at 3 P. M.

Doctor McIndoe and a small party of friends caught a big string of fish at Ted Tripp's resort Tuesday.

Irwin Bros.' circus next Wednesday shows on a new lot, just cleared for them, east of the base ball park.

The Sunday picnic society held a session at Lake Julia this week. The accidents were small and unimportant, and only three of them were wholly immersed in the lake.

The Eagle River Democrat notes that Rhinelander is growing beyond the editor's calculations and evinces surprise at such a state of affairs since Ed. Shimmer's departure for Chicago.

The Normal School regents were to have met yesterday and decided the question of location for the two new schools, but have adjourned the meeting until next Monday, the 17th, when the matter will be settled. This suspense is getting terrible!

Tom L. Givney has leased the Eagle House, and changed its name to the City Hotel. He will run it as a first-class low priced house, and will try to merit a share of the public patronage. Tom understands how to run a hotel, and we predict he will make a success of the venture.

Every democrat should be a regular reader of that ideal democratic newspaper—The Chicago Herald. It did yeoman service in the late campaign and earned the gratitude of all who hoped for the triumph of low tariff. The Herald is always on sale at the Leonard news stand.

The excursion to Tomahawk Lake Sunday is already an assured success. The Mill Men's Union are giving everybody the advantage of a low rate and the pleasure of a day's recreation at the handsome lake regions. Tickets for the round trip are now on sale at 75 cents. Better buy them now and avoid the rush Sunday morning.

The merry-go-round that is being operated on Brown street is the best rig of the kind ever seen here and is being well patronized. Some features of it are said, by good judges, to be dangerous and young people should take the box chairs, as the peculiar oscillating motion of the horses is very apt to shake them off. No accidents have happened up to the present writing.

The present town board seem to have a hobby for roads. It's a good one, however, and money expended in that way will ultimately prove of more benefit to the town and its inhabitants than many of us at present imagine. Good roads are a sure indication of prosperity and a forerunner of municipal growth. Every road through the town or county will bring settlers to it and every settler will bring others.

The Irwin Bros.' circus had quite a time getting a license to show here. The town board very properly decided to be a little careful in future about giving every circus a license since Lemon Bros. sprung theirs. The Irwins do not claim to have a big show. They do say that their performance is good and that no overcharges or short change will be allowed. They furnished some good references and the board granted them a license for $50.00.

A. F. Quail, of Phillips, has purchased the meat business of James Gleason, taking possession Monday. Ernest Kenht has been employed by him and will do the cutting. Mr. Quail is a gentleman who comes here with the best of recommendations as to his business ability and good citizenship. He has had experience in the meat business and proposes to run a good market. The change gives the town another good family, and loses it nothing, as Mr. Gleason will remain here, going into some other business.

Giles Coon and E. M. Kemp, accompanied by their families, spent a portion of the week at Tomahawk Lake fishing.

There will be an addition of several articles at the regular cake sale at the Palace Drug Store Saturday afternoon. The M. E. church ladies are conducting the sale this week.

Ashland has offered nothing towards a Normal School but a site, the city and county not giving any cash bonus. They offer with the site a sanitarium building, that was never quite completed nor occupied.

The crowning achievement, the greatest hippodromatic exhibition ever seen under canvas, to be seen only in the Irwin Bros.' Shows which come to this city for one day only, Wednesday, July 19. Two performances, afternoon and night. The price of admission is but 50 cents. Go early and avoid the rush.

The Hurley ball club defeated Rhinelander Sunday by a score of 7 to 11. It was the most exciting and decidedly the best game of the season. From the beginning to the end there was plenty of life, and although a great many errors were made, the closeness of the score held the audience interested to the end. Hurley won the game in the 9th inning, by good hard batting, scoring six runs.

Duncan Clark and his aggregation of females had a trying time during the past week. One of the scenery jugglers who left the show here, had the car attached by the sheriff and the company was forced to go on without it. The case was settled Friday by Clark's coming back to town and settling with the claimant. It is to be hoped that next year the attachment will be put on before the company reaches here.

The Oshkosh ball players who were up here the 2d, running down hits, don't stand the laugh they are getting at home very well. They reported that they won the game easily by a score of 13 to 1, and of course when their papers found out that they had been lying about it they made a few remarks. Now the ball team has become so badly rattled that they are threatening to challenge somebody and prove that they can play ball.

The Mill Men's Union will give a grand excursion and basket picnic Sunday, the 16th inst., to Tomahawk Lake. A special train on the Lake Shore road will leave the depot here at 8:30 A. M. and return at 9 o'clock P. M., giving the entire day at Tomahawk Lakes. The fare for the round trip is only 75 cents, and preparations for the comfort of all who attend have been made. A baggage car will be attached to the train and lunches can be taken with perfect safety. Tickets can be bought at any time up to the minute of the train's departure.

One of the most successful social affairs ever given in the city was the private dancing party, of Archie McIndoe and his cousin Miss Mame Charlton, last Friday evening at the Rhinelander Opera House. Something over forty couples were in attendance, and a great many fine costumes were noticeable among the ladies. The music, furnished by Dana's orchestra, of Wausau, was fine. Refreshments were served at the home of Mrs. McIndoe on Oneida Avenue. The evening was a pleasant one for all who attended, and the party was voted easily the finest of the season.

There is always an advantage in being forewarned, but occasionally when the warning proves a false one it isn't of any particular value. When the big storm of Tuesday came up the average man viewed the approaching clouds with a sort of indifferent admiration. Not so, however, with the stranger who stood back of the Oneida House and cast his weather eye at the ominous heavens. He was evidently from Kansas, and knowing that delay meant disaster, he sprang for a place of safety. In one bound he was at the foot of the clothes reel, and winding his arm firmly around the post, awaited with bated breath the wind that was to carry away the town, all but him and the clothes reel. It didn't come, but the rain did, and when a stream began running in at his collar and out at the bottom of his pants leg he paid no attention to it. He was waiting for the wind, but the hail stones drove him from his ambush. With a wise look at the people who illustrated the old maxim that "he who knows nothing fears nothing" he left for the brush to wring out his clothes.

ARNER CONRO & SON.

To Settle With Vilas County.

Gov. Peck has appointed the commissioners to effect a settlement between Oneida and Vilas counties. They are Hon. A. R. Bushnell, of Madison, Geo. W. Porth, of Milwaukee, and J. F. Huntington, of Delton. There is no statement yet as to when the commissioners will begin their work.

The Deal Is Off.

The representative of the General Electric Company, who have held an option on Casper Faust's electric light plant here, was in the city Friday to convey the very unwelcome news that the deal was off. The money market has caused it. The General Electric Company is one of the heavy institutions of the country but in the present times they are no more than anyone else. They cannot raise a dollar in money on first-class securities and of course cannot make any such improvement as was contemplated here. They have made arrangements with Mr. Faust to renew the deal as soon as the money situation becomes easier.

It's Almost Over.

The Mead trial at Waupaca is nearly over and there remains but little chance for any opinion except that the defendants will be promptly acquitted. The state's case was admittedly weak, and the defendants have told the story of their whereabouts on the eventful night, and no cross questioning has been able to make them waver one iota. The evidence was all circumstantial, and even those who considered it as damaging were of the opinion that to convict before a jury there must be something more, and that something was expected to appear when the defendants themselves took the stand. It has not come out, however, and the trial now looks like it would result in nothing but a bill of expense for the county of Waupaca.

New Hardware Firm.

M. H. Greenly disposed of his stock of hardware and business Saturday to G. H. Clark and Tim Lennon, who have formed a co-partnership and will conduct the business under the firm name of Clark & Lennon. Both of these men are well-known here. They are reliable, hardworking and energetic and have the confidence of everyone in the community. Gid Clark is known all through this section, having been sheriff and county treasurer, and Tim Lennon has for years been a successful logger in these parts. There is no question but what they will make a success of any business they undertake. A large invoice of new goods will be added to the stock now in the store and a full line of everything in the business will be carried. We are glad to say that Mr. Greenly will remain here, though what he will do is not yet decided. He and his family have made many friends during their stay here, who would be sorry to see them leave the city.

Tomorrow's Races.

The Jumbo Park dedication tomorrow will be a highly successful affair, weather permitting, from any angle you may view it. Owing to the heavy rains of Tuesday the track is not fit for racing to-day, and the dedication matinee has been postponed until to-morrow. A good turn out of people is assured, and that the races will be first-class is no longer a question, as the horses here and printed program gives assurance. Jumbo Park has as fine a track as any town could desire. The promoters of this enterprise have secured the best horses in Northern Wisconsin to take part in the opening races and people who go to-morrow afternoon will see some of them go in the thirties. At Wausau Saturday, Shawano Boy and St. Cloud went a half mile in 1:10. Following is the program of the afternoon, in addition to which there will be a free-for-all running race by local horses and an exhibition of the trotting moose:

Nothing Like It.

"Nothing like it has ever been seen in this country."—that is the opinion of every visitor to Hagenbeck's Zoological Arena on Midway Plaisance, World's Fair grounds. Every day, from morning till late in the evening, thousands of World's Fair visitors crowd this wonderful show, to witness the performance of the lions on horseback, tigers on velocipedes, trained pigs, the rare monkeys and parrots, and thousands of other wonderful curiosities. Don't fail to see the greatest of all animal shows when visiting the World's Fair grounds. A restaurant with popular prices is in the building.

Bought a Stone Crusher.

The town board closed a contract Monday evening with the American Road Machine Co., for a nine hundred dollar stone crusher. It will be delivered as soon as possible, but is not to be paid for for a year. It is guaranteed to work satisfactorily and to crush one hundred tons of hard heads or quarry stone in a day. The town board has figured the matter over carefully and find that crushed stone can be put upon the streets at a less cost than gravel, and at the same time it is a great deal better. There is plenty of rock here which can be had for nothing. One ledge of stone between the Lake Shore tracks and the river has stone enough in it to cover nearly all the streets of the city. The work of making roads with crushed stone and roads that will permanently equal the best pavement is as simple as could be imagined. A turnpike of the light soil covered with the crushed rock, will become as hard and smooth as a floor, and at a less cost than to gravel them. In five years from now every road in the county should be in fine shape if the crusher is kept at work.

Resolution of Town Board.

WHEREAS, the town board of Pelican, exercising the powers of a village board within the limits of the unincorporated village of Rhinelander, intend to widen and extend Mason street in said village and whereas it is necessary to take private property therefor, and whereas said board have caused an accurate survey and plat of the property so necessary to be taken to be made and filed with the town clerk of Pelican.

Now, therefore, be it resolved that sufficient land be taken for that purpose to extend said Mason street in a direct line to Alban street, the land so taken being described as follows: All that part of lot 14 of block 10 of S. H. Alban's Addition to the village of Rhinelander in Oneida County, Wisconsin, bounded by a line beginning at the northwest corner of said lot, running thence sixty-two feet southeast along the northeast boundary of said lot, thence sixty feet to a point on the southwest boundary of said lot twenty-seven and three-tenths feet from the southwest corner of said lot, thence to the said southwest corner of said lot and thence to the place of beginning; the area so taken being six one-hundredths acres and the owner thereof being R. E. Dimmick; and also all that portion of lot 15 of said block bounded by a line beginning at the northwest corner of said lot, running thence twenty-seven and three-tenths feet (27.3 feet) along the northeast boundary of said lot, thence forty-seven and two-tenths feet to a point on the western boundary of said lot fifty-four and four one-hundredths feet south of the place of beginning, thence to the place of beginning; the area so taken being fifteen one-thousandths acres and the owner thereof being Elnor Phelps.

The 22d day of July, 1893, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the office of Paul Browne, municipal judge for Oneida County, on Davenport street, in the village of Rhinelander in said county, is hereby fixed as the time and place when and where application will be made by said board to said judge for a jury to condemn and appraise said lands. S. G. TUTTLE.

FATE OF A FIEND.

A Mob's Revenge on the Slayer of the Ray Girls in Kentucky—He Is Hanged and Shot and His Body Is Mutilated and Burned.

HARDWEIL, Ky., July 8.—Seay J. Miller, the negro charged with the outrage and murder of Mary and Ruby Ray, was hanged at 3:27 o'clock Friday afternoon and the body burned after being horribly mutilated. The negro made a speech proclaiming his innocence, but it is said that he afterward made a partial confession.

The steamer Three States, with several hundred men from Cairo on board, met the special train from Sikeston at Bard's Point. The prisoner was put on the boat and taken to Wickliffe at 4 o'clock Friday morning. Frank Gordon, the fisherman who ferried the murderer across the Mississippi river Wednesday night, identified Miller as the same man. Still Miller pleaded his innocence, and John Ray, the father of the murdered girls, counseled patience. The mob boarded a train at Wickliffe and brought the prisoner to this city, arriving at 11:30 o'clock. There was not less than 5,000 men at the depot and the train of eighteen coaches was crowded. Previous to this time an agreement was made by the people to allow the father of the children to prescribe the punishment, but when the train arrived it seemed that the men forgot their promise for the time. They pushed to the train, one over another, and at one time it was thought by a great many that the negro was being torn limb from limb.

At last quiet was restored and all went to a very high scaffold constructed of bridge timbers. Sheriff Hudson, the prisoner and a number of the guards mounted the stand. John Ray, the father of the murdered girls, made a talk, in which he said: "This is the man who killed my children, but let us keep quiet now, and at the proper time burn him."

The negro was called upon to make a talk and responded promptly and with wonderful nerve, considering the circumstances under which he was placed. His voice was clear and he seemed almost oblivious to the surroundings. His exact words were as follows:

"My name is Seay J. Miller and I am from Springfield, Ill. My wife lives at 716 North Second street. I am here among you as a stranger and looked on by you as the murderer of two white girls. I am standing here an innocent man among excited men who do not propose to let the law take its course. I have committed no crime to be deprived of my liberty or life. I am not guilty."

At this time he was disturbed by several questions and many called on him to go on, but Sheriff Hudson begged to be permitted to put him in jail and get some rest for himself, which he needed so badly. At this time Mr. Ray, the father of the children, appeared on the stand and talked only a few moments, carrying on a conversation with several persons on the ground. Mr. Ray repeated the charge against the negro and said he was willing to set a time and place for the execution, which was agreed between him and several bystanders should be 8 o'clock. It was then a few minutes past 12, and the negro was placed in jail to await the time when he would be called forth.

At 3:20 o'clock the negro was brought from the jail to the principal street. A chain was around his neck and many were pulling at it. The crowd was wild and no one could guess at the fate of the negro. He was almost suffocated when the north end of the depot was reached, and here the father of the girls relented to some extent and suggested that he be hanged rather than burned.

At 3:27 the body was swung to a telegraph pole directly at the north end of the depot and he was drawn up. His clothes were torn from his body by the maddened mob. He was heard to say just as they drew him up: "I am an innocent man," but there is a fully authenticated report that he made a partial confession that the mob took him from the jail. The negro was drawn up with his face to the pole, and when his feet were 2 or 3 feet from the ground some one shot him from the front, the ball passing entirely through his body. In a few minutes life was extinct, it being ascertained he was dead at 3:45 o'clock.

The body was left hanging until 4:25, during which time some of the toes and fingers were cut off. The body was finally taken down and carried about 300 yards to the rear of the Downs & Hart mill. At that place the ears were cut off, nearly all the remaining toes and fingers were severed and the body otherwise mutilated. The body was then placed between two kegs and kindling piled upon it and then enough wood to complete the job of the burning.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 8.—The wife of the negro, Miller, burned at Hardwell, Ky., for the murder of the two Ray girls, has been located in this city at 716 North Second street, where she lives. The Millers came here from Cairo about the time of the opening of the legislature, and the man made unsuccessful attempts to get employment at the state house. He remained here until about the first of June, when he returned to Cairo, leaving his wife here. The Millers seemed to be respectable and associated with the better class of colored people, being members of the African Methodist church. The woman has heard the report of the lynching of her husband and is frantic with grief. She protests that he was innocent. This impression seems to prevail here.

CARAVELS AT ANCHOR.

The Famous Fleet Reaches Its Destination at Jackson Park—An Enthusiastic Reception.

CHICAGO, July 8.—At 11 a. m. Friday the Columbus caravels, the Nina, Pinta and Santa Maria, were off the government pier on their way to the world's fair grounds. They were in tow, with sails furled, and were surrounded by the steam and sailing craft which went from this city to Evanston early in the morning to act as an escort. The revenue cutter Michigan, on board of which were the Spanish commissioners, Signors Tagones and Vera, in brilliant uniform, was in the lead and behind and at either side the caravels were the other craft bearing the mayor and city council, distinguished citizens and yachtsmen who went out to meet the commander of the little fleet whose voyage from the old world has been watched with such keen interest by the people of this country.

The three caravels arrived at Milwaukee Thursday, and by 9 a. m. were off Evanston when the Chicago escort gave them greeting. In the lead of the Chicago fleet as it approached Evanston was the man-of-war Michigan, closely followed by the revenue cutter Andy Johnson, with numerous small steamers and yachts not far behind. Upon sighting the caravels the Michigan and Johnson lay to and each fired a salute of twenty-one guns. Then a cable was carried to the Santa Maria from the Michigan and the procession to Jackson park was begun. The Pinta and Nina being towed by the Johnson and the United States survey steamer Blake. Throughout the whole distance the shore could be seen lined with spectators.

As the boats came into view and bore down the lake to the final anchorage of the caravels, off the Manufacturers' building, flags and handkerchiefs were waved, enthusiastic cheers were given, bands played, and the whistles of all craft in the vicinity were tooted. The chiming in the tower of Machinery hall joined in with the rest and pealed out a number of Spanish and American national airs.

When the fleet had anchored W. E. Curtis and Dr. Bertolotto went out in a launch as representatives of Director General Davis to bring Capt. Concas and the other officers of the Spanish boats ashore. The officers of the Michigan and the other boats joined them and they were all heartily greeted as they landed. After the general introductions the party started for the platform east of the terminal station under the escort of the cosmopolitan column that had received them on the pier. At the platform a more formal welcome awaited them. Director General Davis, representing the exposition, and Senator John Sherman, Secretary of the Navy Herbert and a number of other men of national prominence were there with long speeches all ready to be fired. There were about 250 people on the platform altogether and an immense crowd gathered out in front of it. Director General Davis acted as master of ceremonies. He introduced Capt. Concas as the commander of the fleet and then presented Senator Sherman. Capt. Concas then made a brief response in English and was followed by Secretary of the Navy Herbert. At the conclusion of these exercises the officers of the caravels and the United States ships, the speakers, Spanish commission and a few other invited guests repaired to the convent of La Rabida, where a luncheon was served.

At 3:27 the body was swung to a telegraph pole directly at the north end of the depot and he was drawn up. His clothes were torn from his body by the maddened mob. He was heard to say just as they drew him up: "I am an innocent man," but there is a fully authenticated report that he made a partial confession that the mob took him from the jail. H. C. BRUEGER, Agt.

Minne'is, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie

Good-by, Sweetheart.

(Copyright, 1903, by
W. F. Wells & Sons.)

HE two friends
had finished
their dinner.

From the windows of the safe they overlooked the boulevard, which at this hour was crowded with people. The soft breezes that sweep through the streets of Paris on warm summer nights fanned their cheeks, inviting them to go down among the trees, somewhere, anywhere, to dream of moonlit streams, inspired poems and chanting nightingales.

One of them, Henri Simon, said to his companion, with a profound sigh:

"I feel that I am growing old, my friend. On such a night as this in days gone by I was keenly alive to the pleasures of existence. To-day I have nothing but regrets. Life is short at the best."

He was a man about forty-five years old, a little stout and quite bald.

The other, Pierre Carnier, not his senior in appearance by any means, but more slender and vivacious, replied:

"I, my friend, have grown old without noticing it. I was always gay and jolly, vigorous and all that. For, when one looks at himself in the glass every day in the year the ravages of age are not apparent; they are slow and regular and work such gradual changes that the transition is not noticeable. We can hardly perceive it. To see it plainly, one should not look into the mirror

for six months at least; and then—ah, what a shock!

"And the women, old fellow—how I pit them! All their happiness, their power, their life is in their beauty, and that lasts but ten years at best.

"As for myself, I grew old without suspecting it. I thought myself still a youth when I was near fifty years of age. Free from infirmities of any kind, I was going my way, happy and content. But the revelation of my decline came upon me in such a simple yet startling manner that I felt the effects of the shock six months afterward. Then I accepted my fate gratefully.

"I have often been in love, like all men; but once in my life I was quite hard hit.

"I met her at the sea shore—at Etretat—about twelve years ago, not long after the war. There is nothing more delightful than that beach at early morning in the bathing hour. It is not very extensive, is curved like a horseshoe, and encircled by tall, white cliffs, pierced with singular holes, called "the Gates." One of these cliffs is enormous, and stretches its gigantic length to the water's edge. The other is round and flat. The women swarm over this narrow strip, with its pebbled walls, and transform it into a brilliant garden of summer toilets within walls of rock. The sun shines full upon the coast, over parasols of every imaginable color, and over the sea of topaz blue. It is a jolly picture, enchanting to the eye. Close by the water's edge the people lounge in the sand, watching the bathers as they come tripping down in their flannel bath robes, which they discard with a pretty movement as soon as the white-fringed waves play around their feet. Then they run in with swift little steps, while the water sends thrills of a delicious chill through their veins.

"Few women are made to endure the crucial test of the bath. Their figure stands revealed from ankle to throat.

As they emerge from the embrace of the briny waters, either their shortcomings are made plain to the eye, or the rounded contours of form and limb are enhanced by the clinging, dripping garments.

"The first time I saw the young woman of whom I have spoken I was carried away by her charms. Few women possess the beauty of form that is startling and overpowering at the first glance—that seems to a man as if he had suddenly met the creature he was born to love. I experienced that sensation and that shock.

"I was introduced to her, and was more deeply smitten than ever in my life. She made me her slave, and it was both terrible and delicious to submit thus to the reign of a woman. It is torture and indescribable felicity at once.

Her look, her smile, the little tendrils of hair around her neck, ruffled by the reeze, every line in her face, her slight movement, captivated my senses and enslaved and drove me to distraction.

She took complete possession of me. I craved me to see her veil lying on a chair, or her gloves thrown carelessly on the sofa. Her toilet seemed matchless in my eyes, and no other woman had ever worn hats more becoming than hers.

"She was married. Her husband came every Saturday and departed again on Monday. I was not in the least concerned about him, nor jealous of his relation to her. No living creature ever seemed of less consequence to me than this man.

"Ah! how I loved her—she who was so gay, so pretty and so graceful! She was youth, elegance and freshness personified. I never felt more keenly than

I did then that a woman is a sweet, lovely and delicate being, made of charms and graces. Never before had

I discovered the beauty that lay in the rounded contour of a cheek, the movement of a lip, the curves and creases of a little ear, the shape even of that stupid feature, the nose.

"This lasted three months, when I was called to America, whither I went with a crushed and broken heart.

Even away from her, I was her slave still. Years went by. I could not forget her. Her charms were constantly before my eyes and in my heart. I cherished her memory with a tenderness that had grown calm, and I loved her as one loves a dream of a most beautiful and enchanting thing.

"Twelve years do not mean much in the life of a man. They pass almost unnoticed. One follows upon the other, slowly yet swiftly. Each is long, yet soon at an end. Although they multiply rapidly, they leave few traces behind, and vanish so completely that when one looks back upon them, there is nothing left to remind us of their flight, and age creeps on without warning.

"It seemed to me that only a few years separated me from that delightful season on the beach at Etretat.

"One day last spring I went to dine with friends at Maisons-Lafitte. Just as the train was about to start, a portly matron entered the coach I occu-pled, accompanied by four little girls.

I could not help looking curiously at this large, rotund, motherly creature, whose face was like the full moon under a beribboned hat. She puffed and panted from the exertion of her hurried walk. The children began to babble, and I unfolded my newspaper and commenced to read. As we passed Asnières my neighbor suddenly accosted me:

"I beg your pardon, sir; are you not

M. Carnier?"

"Yes, madam."

"She laughed with the contented laugh of a cheerful woman, but there was just a tinge of sadness in her voice.

"Do you not recognize me?"

"I hesitated. It seemed to me that I had seen her face before, but I could not tell when and where. I answered:

"Yes, . . . and, no . . . I certainly know you, but I cannot recollect your name." She blushed a little.

"Mme. Julie Lafitte."

"I was startled out of my wits. For moment the earth seemed to reel round me, and a veil was rudely torn from my eyes which made me see things with terrible, heart-rending clearness.

"It was she! This stout, common woman, the mother of these four girls,

I eyed the little creature with such astonishment as I did their mother.

They had followed her; they had taken their places in life, already half women, and she counted for nothing—she, who had once been such a marvel of delicate and coquettish charms!

"It seemed to me that I had known her but yesterday, and to find her thus again! It was impossible! A violent pang wrung my heart. I rebelled against Nature, and her brutal, infamous work of destruction! I looked at her with frightened eyes. When I took her hand in mine tears dimmed my vision. I wept for her youth; I wept for her death. This stout woman was a stranger to me.

"She, too, was touched, and she faltered: 'I am much changed, I know;

but it is only natural. I am a mother now—nothing but a mother, a good mother. Farewell to everything else that is passed. I did not think that you would recognize me, or that we should ever meet again. You yourself are not as you used to be. It took me some time to decide whether I was not mistaken in my surmise. Your hair has grown quite gray. Think of it; twelve years is a long time. My oldest daughter is nearly ten years old."

"I looked at the child and discovered in her some of the old charms of her mother, undefinable as yet, unformed and in the bud, and life seemed to me nothing more than a rapidly passing train. We arrived at Maisons-Lafitte.

I kissed my old friend's hand and parted from her with a few trivial phrases. I was too deeply moved to speak.

"In the evening, when I was alone, I examined my face a long time in the mirror, and ended by recalling to my mind the picture of myself as I had been in bygone days, with brown sustache and black hair and a young fresh face. But now I was old. Farewell!"

"A Literal Belief.—Ten Broke—"I wish I hadn't married such an orthodox woman." Asks—"Does your wife make you go to church?" Ten Broke—

"No; but she holds to the Biblical theory of the creation. Seems to think

Numerous trees were shivered by lightning, and the rain came down in perfect sheets for nearly an hour. A high wind did some damage, overturning a number of fences, and wrecking the merry-go-round outfit on Brown street. It is a difficult matter to decide, in a show like the Irwin Bros., which embraces all features, just which is entitled to be called pre-eminent. Lovers of the perfect horse, and those who especially enjoy these furious efforts of rival riders, will probably accord this distinction to our hippodrome performance. We are coming to your city, but not until Wednesday, July 19. Wait for us, the big show of them all. "My little boy was very bad off for two months with diarrhea. This is a good chance for anyone to secure a home easily. The Preservations of American Forests. This bare recapitulation of the areas already designated and reserved under the act of 1891 is sufficient to make plain the extreme importance of the results already secured. What course may be contemplated by the present administration in the further demarkation and establishment of national forest areas cannot yet be known. It is certainly to be hoped that an undertaking so splendidly begun may be carried still further. The prosperity not only of farmers, but also of towns and cities throughout the western states and territories is related so vital to the maintenance of a perennial and sufficient flow of water from the mountain streams that it may be asserted almost as a mathematical axiom that the larger the upland stretches of forest that are preserved from destruction at the hands of the timber cutter, or by forest fires, the greater will be the wealth and prosperity in generations to come of those states of magnificent promise. It should have been explained that within these large reserves there exist here and there pieces of land which have already been granted to private owners and the title to which the government has not extinguished. It is, of course, desirable that public reservations should contain as few as possible of these privately-owned farms and claims and mines. Hence the importance of establishing as rapidly as possible such forest reservations as climate and topographical conditions would show to be advantageous for the future welfare of the surrounding regions. WISCONSIN STATE NEWS.

Must Answer for Escher's Death. The preliminary examination of Frank Welluhn and Bertha Escher, charged with the murder of William Escher, husband of Bertha, closed at 10 o'clock, and both were held for the trial next September. The evidence showed clearly that Welluhn bought a revolver a few days before the murder; that he was extremely intimate with Bertha and Escher was jealous of him, and that on the night the murder he was seen going into a grove with Escher where the latter's body was found.

A Brutal Deed. Great excitement prevailed at Mandan over an attempted assault upon the Sadie Taylor, the 12-year-old daughter of J. B. Taylor, superintendent of the Wisconsin Furnace company. The girl had been to church, after which with other girls she started for home, leaving them, she proceeded home, and when near her father's residence was struck in the face, knocked

Said petition must be signed by two responsible citizens, vouching for the business capacity and reputation of the applicant, that he is a master of his trade and willing to be governed in all respects by the rules and regulations which are or may be adopted by the board of public work. Every drain layer shall be subject to and conform to all and singular the rules, regulations and penalties which now exist or may hereafter be adopted by said board of public works.

Bond. Before receiving a license, the party shall execute and deposit in the office of the board of public works, a bond, with two or more sureties to be approved by said board, in the sum of one thousand dollars, conditioned that he will indemnify and save harmless the town of Pelican or the board of public works, of and from all accidents and damages caused by any negligence in protecting his work or by any unfaithful, imperfect or inadequate work done by virtue of his license, and that he will also replace and restore the pavement or street over any opening he may have made, to as good state and condition as he found it, and keep and maintain the same in good order to the satisfaction of the board or its proper officer for the period of three months next thereafter, and that he will pay all fines imposed upon him for a violation of any rule or regulation of the board. On receiving his license he shall have recorded his actual place of business, the name under which the business is transacted, and shall immediately notify the board of every change of either, hereafter. No license shall be granted for more than one year, and all licenses shall expire on the first day of January. Removal of residence from the city shall act as a forfeiture of license.

No permit shall be deemed to authorize any thing not stated in the application and for any misrepresentation in such application the drain layer may be fined or suspended, and if it appears to be willful, his license shall be revoked.

A GRAND EXHIBITION.

Such the World's Fair Is Pro-nounced by Visiting Celebrities.

Nothing Lacking to Make It a Complete Success—A Great Educator of the People—Unexcelled in the History of World's Fairs.

[Special Chicago Correspondence.]

If we accept as conclusive the verdict of the distinguished people who have seen the world's fair we may rest assured that in all the history of world's fairs there never yet has been one so grand and imposing as our Columbian exposition. In the enthusiastic praises which have been lavished upon it by those of exalted station there has not been one dissenting voice, and among the vast number of intelligent human beings who have thronged the wonderful city there have been few to detract and none to ignore. In fact if we except a few disgruntled individuals, who have some personal spite or grievance in consequence of being overlooked or slighted in the distribution of favors, we may say that in the opinion of all, both high and low, who have seen the fair it is the greatest, grandest exhibition the world has ever seen. The royal visitors from abroad have been astounded at the magnitude and grandeur of the enterprise. They had heard a great deal about it and were prepared to find a pretty big show here in Chicago, but when their eyes beheld the splendor of the White City great was their surprise and admiration. They were still further surprised when they visited our great city. Although they had passed through some of the older cities of the east they found much in Chicago to make them

open their eyes, and the entertainment they received here in our "wild and woolly west" was such as to afford them a fruitful topic for discussion when they return to the palatial halls of their ancestors.

Many prominent men and women of our own country have come and gone and every one of them has left with the impression that nothing was lacking to make of the fair a complete success. And the impression was no mistaken one, to judge from the later reports from official sources. Everything points to a good interest on world's fair stock just at present, and there is little likelihood of any falling off in the receipts during the remainder of the fair season.

A JAPANESE OFFICIAL.

It has been said that the Columbian exposition of 1893 will be one of the greatest educators of the people that has ever arisen in this country. The leading artists and artisans view with great pride and satisfaction the work of young Americans and predict for sculpture and art a glorious future in the west. And they are undoubtedly warranted in their predictions, as a careful scrutiny of the products of American genius at the fair will prove.

In this connection we may fitly quote the words of the Philadelphia Ledger in reference to the grand exhibition, which says:

"Irrespective of the historical, scientific or artistic lessons it has to impart, it is a grand exhibition, appealing to every one's sense of beauty, and to every one's interest in things curious. The buildings are marvels of architectural dignity and beauty and so various in their styles and so richly ornamented with sculptured figures as to afford the keenest delight to the eye. Within the beautiful structures are tens of thousands of objects to delight the eye or inform the mind. It is the world in miniature. Some people will be more interested in one department than in others, but there is variety enough to occupy all the spare time that any busy man or woman can give to the fair."

In addition to the display of higher arts there are extensive exhibits of educational methods by our leading colleges and schools which demonstrate the wonderful progress made in the department of learning during the last quarter of a century. In the educational section of the Manufactures building are to be found these valuable and interesting evidences of the growth of knowledge in our land, and anyone that leaves the fair without visiting this display will miss one of its best features.

Some of the strange costumes worn by the foreigners at the fair occasion considerable merriment among the young folks. On the Midway Plaisance the other day a score of grinning youths surrounded one of the members of the Japanese community and held him prisoner for a few moments while they made sport of his clothing. The horrible-colored victim of their curiosity stood the joke good-naturedly as far as his apparel was concerned, but when they got to poking him in the ribs and stepping on his toes, he rebelled and broke through the line that surrounded him and made his escape.

Among the most deeply interested visitors at the fair are a number of Indians from a neighboring show. They devote all their spare time to sight-seeing among the wonders of the "heap big show." It is quite evident that they also enjoy the public interest which their appearance never fails to excite. Garbed in all the trappings of their wild life, they pose and parade for the benefit of the gaping crowds about them.

A story is going the rounds about a man who wandered into the Electricity building a day or two ago and was taken away shouting crazy. It was said that he stood before a pavilion in which cut glass in myriad forms throws back the reflection of many incandescent lights. From the roof of the pavilion towers a pillar eighty-two feet. For a few seconds this is a pillar of ruby light. Then it changes to

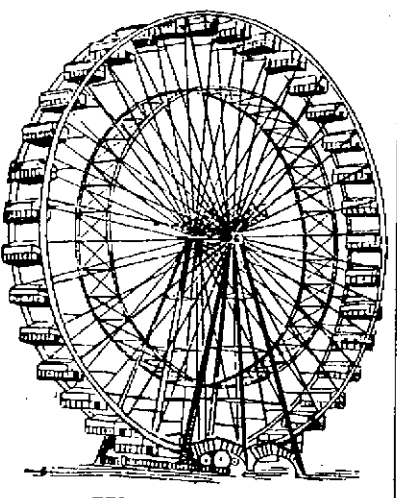

A MAMMOTH WHEEL.

It Takes the Place of a Tower at the World's Fair.

After the various tower schemes for the world's fair were abandoned there came to the front a man by the name of Ferris who had what incredulous people termed a monstrous wheel in his head. Mr. Ferris became the object of much ridicule on account of a pet project of his, which was to build a big wheel which would carry passengers to an altitude of 270 feet. His plan was regarded as exceedingly visionary, but after frequent rebuffs he succeeded in obtaining a permit to put up his wheel in the Midway Plaisance. The work was begun last March and has just reached successful completion and has been put in operation.

Its highest point is 265 feet above the surface of the earth. The diameter is 250 feet, and the circumference 825, the entire thing being raised 15 feet above the ground.

In reality there are two wheels, twins, 30 feet apart, but it takes them both to make the Ferris wheel. These twins are connected by iron rods and struts which do not approach nearer than 20 feet to the periphery. Outside of these rods the cars are hung and supported by steel bars of about five inches in thickness extending from one wheel to the other. Each wheel has for its outline a curved iron beam 2½ by 19 inches. Forty feet inside is another beam, forming a smaller circle. From these beams or circles extends the massive iron truss work which holds them together. The axle on which the great wheel turns is a steel bar 82 inches thick and 45 feet long. It is fastened to each of the twin wheels in a steel hub 16 feet in diameter. All of this great mass, the hubs and the two circles, is held together by 2½-inch steel rods, arranged to run out in pairs from the axle to spread 13 feet apart at the circumference.

There are thirty-six cars on the wheel, each capable of comfortably seating forty people. The cars are 37 feet long, 13 feet wide and 9 feet high, and each one weighs 13 tons.

The wheel, with its passengers, weighs 1,200 tons. The whole thing rests on two pyramidal towers at the axis. The towers are 140 feet high, 40 by 50 feet at the base and 6 feet square at the top. Each tower has 4 feet resting on 20-foot cube concrete foundations. Underneath these are crossbars of steel. The motive power comes from a 1,000-horse power steam engine under the wheel. It will find no difficulty in revolving the wheel and the passengers as fast as the latter want to go. There is a brake on, however, to regulate the speed and stop everything in case of danger. The wheel is moved by cogs on the periphery passing over a chain that looks like a mammoth bicycle chain. In the construction every precaution has been taken against accident.

RELICS OF OLD MEXICO.

Wonderful Exhibit Opened in the Anthropological Section.

Rich in relics and ruins of a civilization that long antedated the coming of Columbus, and which runs back beyond the ken into the prehistoric period of the world, Mexico is the first to open a display in the Anthropological building. The event occurred a few days ago, but was unattended by any ceremonies, though hundreds gained admission to see the wonders that have been exhumed, and ancient utensils and weapons which the Indians of Mexico use.

As Prescott says in his "Conquest of Mexico," the Spaniards encountered a civilization in Mexico superior to their own in all save the art of destruction, and in the Mexican anthropological collection there are numerous remnants of this superior civilization in antique pieces of architecture, pottery and war weapons, while other evidences have been accurately reproduced from details written in descriptions given by Cortez and his scribes. Among the reproductions in miniature are the temples of Nochticalco and Xicotencatl, which were great pyramidal structures after the Egyptian style of architecture.

Besides the war shields of the Caciques of the army of Guatemalan, who fought Cortez, other weapons and such antiquities as sacrificial stones, there are among the collections articles of wear, palm leaf capotes, gaudy colored cotton cloth rebases, straw sandals and other parts of the costumes of the different kinds of Indians still inhabiting Mexico, together with the old-fashioned utensils they used to grind corn, the simple loom and wooden plow. Home life in the tropical part of the country is illustrated in a thatched and grass-matted cottage, while a farmhouse is built of adobe to keep out the cold. The collection is large, varied and interesting, and is exhibited at Prof. Putnam's solicitation by Col. George M. Greene, a Pennsylvanian, who has become thoroughly Mexicanized by thirty or more years' residence in the City of Mexico. He has been assisted by his wife in making the selections, and she helps in presenting and explaining them to the public.

You want the Best

Royal Baking Powder never disappoints; never makes sour, soggy or husky food; never spoils good materials; never leaves lumps of alkali in the biscuit or cake; while all these things do happen with the best of cooks who cling to the old-fashioned methods, or who use other baking powders.

TO MAKE MEAT TENDER.

Some Methods Which Have Been Successfully Tried.

It is well known that meat must be kept some time after the killing to make it tender. In winter a large piece of beef or mutton will keep for six weeks if hung in a dry, cool place. This is time allowed in England for the Christmas "shoulder of mutton," and every few days it is rubbed with salt and vinegar. In summer, unless the butcher will keep the meat for you, other means must be resorted to. A tough piece of meat may be laid in not too strong vinegar for three or four days in summer and twice as long in winter, and spiced if desired. To soften a tough steak pour a few spoonfuls of vinegar and a spoonful of oil on and stand from twelve to twenty-four hours. This is done in hotels where all cuts of steak are served tender. Sour milk may be used for the same purpose with even greater success, but this must be changed every day and at the end of the time well washed from the meat. Round steak at half the price of "porterhouse" and tenderloin can after a little experimenting be made tender for stewing, roasting or broiling by one of these methods. In winter meat should be bought ahead and kept until tender.

Now that meat and fowls are frozen and carried long distances, the bones of meat and carcasses of the fowls may be injured if frozen before the natural heat and gases have passed away. If the joint is pierced till the bone is entered by an iron prong the sickening odor of the gas will betray itself. Soups from such bones has caused serious illness. The beef itself does not indicate its condition, and can only be tested even by the butcher as above.

Meats, vegetables and fruits should not be cooked in agate and porcelain ware that has been chipped. Some persons are more sensitive than others, and invalids may be very seriously harmed. Inspection of these cooking kettles, double boilers, etc., is necessary. —Union Signal.

What Hon. Samuel W. Allerton Thinks of Them.

The Hon. Samuel W. Allerton, the noted capitalist of Chicago, arrived over the Burlington Route a few days since, and during an interview with a "Star" reporter said: "You people do not begin to realize what you have here in these waters. I have had the opportunity of traveling some over the United States and have visited a great number of its health resorts with springs, which are claimed to have medicinal properties, but in my opinion, you have water here that is superior to anything in this whole country. If not the world, for the cure of rheumatic affections and diseases of the skin. My attention was first called to these springs by an intimate friend, Mr. Spencer, who owns a large cattle ranch west of here. He had a man on his ranch that was so badly afflicted with rheumatism that he was bathed in the old Indian bath for several weeks, and he went home entirely cured up and I resolved that if ever I had rheumatism in my family, I would try Hot Springs, South Dakota. We brought Mrs. Allerton here as soon as she was able to come at all and I have found that all Mr. Spencer said in reference to the curative properties of the waters has been realized in my wife's case. She says she feels as though she has just been turned loose from a prison where she had been called upon to endure excruciating torture—every joint and muscle racked with pain so that life was a burden. No, I think Hot Springs' future is a grand one. Its air is pure and wholesome, its scenery lively and inspiring; sleep comes without any effort, and it is just the place for rest and building up a shattered constitution. You do not talk enough about the value of your waters for skin troubles. I myself, received great benefit from them last year in a short visit here. Your climate makes you infinitely superior to the Arkansas Hot Springs, and in a country where so many tortures are afflicted with rheumatism and other kindred ailments, if you are a stranger, you will become the foremost health resort in the United States. We are delighted with our trip here and what your waters have done for us and will make frequent visits to your pleasant little city." —Hot Springs (S. D.) Star.

A FEW Testimonials from persons who have been cured by the use of Hill's Tablets.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.:—DEAR SIR:—I have been using your cure for tobacco habit, and found it would do what you claim for it. I used ten cents worth of the strongest chewing tobacco a day, and from one to five cigars; or I would smoke from ten to forty pipes of tobacco. Have chewed and smoked for twenty-five years, and two packages of your Tablets cured me so I have no desire for it.

Truly yours, MATTHEW JOHNSON, P. O. Box 45, PERRYSBURG, PA.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.:—IT GIVES ME PLEASURE TO SPEAK A word of praise for your Tablets. My son was strongly addicted to the use of liquor, and through a friend, I was led to try your Tablets. He was a heavy and constant drinker, but after using your Tablets but three days he quit drinking, and will not touch liquor of any kind. I have waited four months before writing you, in order to know the cure was permanent.

Yours truly,
MISS HELEN MORRISON, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

Liveries in England and Europe.

Liveries of uncommon and unheraldic shades are more common in England than on the continent. The blounts, for instance, dress their servants in Maroon pepper and salt, and there is to be seen in the parks a well known livery of violet, with amaranthine facings—a rather startling combination. However, as a rule, good form and good taste are on the side of simplicity, and the habitual livery in the best English houses is a black or dark coat, with only the colored or striped waistcoat and the dress white tie. The long white tie fastened with a pin is only allowable to the coachman and the footman who rides on the box.

The butler in England permits himself or is permitted to indulge in a license which is unheard of abroad. He appears till dinner time in a dress coat, the rest of the costume being emphatically a morning one. Abroad this is never done. Either this functionary does not show, or he is invariably in a full dress suit. On great occasions and in some aristocratic houses this is exchanged for the black coat "à la Française," the black silk breeches and stockings, and sometimes even a slender coat sword, sheathed in black. The concierge or hall porter on gala days wears a rich, heavy gilded uniform, shoes and silk hose, his big cocked hat worn straight across the forehead en bataille, and he carries a tall, massive, silver headed cane.

For coachman and footmen the winter many caped overcoat has been almost entirely superseded by the huge fur tipped and long fur cuffs reaching nearly to the elbow. Some of these have been known to cost large sums of money.—London Letter.

Nodding Off to Sleep.

The loss of voluntary power in a person sinking quietly into sleep is very gradual. An object is grasped by the hand while yet awake—it is seen to be held less and less firmly as sleep comes on, till at last all power is gone, and it falls away. The head of a person in a sitting posture gradually loses the support of the muscles which sustain it upright; it droops by degrees and in the end falls upon the chest. The head falls by the withdrawal of power from particular muscles, the slight shock thence ensuing partially awakens and restores this power, which again raises the head, and this falling and raising, or in other words the nodding, continues as long as the dozing off to sleep while in a sitting posture continues.

At the precise moment when the mind loses its consciousness there results a general relaxation of all the muscles. If the body be at rest in a lying posture, there is no marked result, but if the body be in an uneasy posture, such as sitting, then the relaxation of the muscles causes the falling of the head and nodding described.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Penalty of a Small Vice.

Little vices have their inconveniences, as a Parisian burglar has just discovered to his cost. It appears that the other night a shop on one of the boulevards was broken into, and a strong box was found in the morning wrenched open and with the contents missing. At first it was thought that the burglar had left no trace, but on a careful examination of the floor a piece of chewed tobacco was discovered. This caused suspicion to rest on a former employee who was given to using tobacco in that particular way. He was sought out, and eventually such proofs of his guilt were forthcoming that he was convicted.—London News.

The Iron Industry of Maryland.

The bog iron industry has lived and languished in the flat, sandy, far southern counties of the eastern shore of Maryland for perhaps a century, though there never was a time when it was especially profitable. Now and again, however, some native with money to spare is tempted by the tradition of iron in the swampy lowlands, and he undertakes the task of extracting it. Where you find the name of "Furnace" on the map of the region you may expect to discover traces of this abortive industry.—New York Sun.

Monday was pay day in all of the mills, and a good many thousand dollars was put into circulation. There is not a town in this section of the country as well off these times as is Rhineland. A good many of the lumbering concerns, some of them pretty pretentious firms, in this section, have been forced to pass pay day without the customary ceremony, simply because they couldn't get the cash, no matter how much property they had. Rhineland has fortunately not experienced any of that difficulty, and the men here who have work in any mill, have received their money promptly. Lumber towns are good towns anyway, but lumber towns in which the firms have an interest and pride in the place are better than any other kind. Despite the closeness of money, Rhineland goes right on building and improving every day.

Cy. C. Yawkey is now famous. The Timberman, of Chicago, has given him an illustration, which looks like a picture of Louis Lingg, before the explosion. It also writes him up in a manner calculated to bring a paid "ad" from the closest manager in the world. Among other things the write-up says he never read a piece of poetry; is a crack rifle shot; is stuck on the fair, and is liable to be cranky during business hours. Gentlemen of the Timberman, you will have to guess again on Mr. Yawkey. You haven't got only one thing correct, and you don't know which one that is. There is another Wisconsin valley man who seems to be an artist's mark, for his photo has been transferred into two or three of the lumber journals recently. It is D. D. Flanner, of the Rib River Lumber Co. He has not yet been subjected to such a write-up as Mr. Yawkey silently endured, but he has not yet been seen in Chicago by The Timberman. That paper is never right unless it's wrong.

Boys, if you take the trouble to work out correctly the following problem, it will show exactly what good people think of you. Place the year of your birth on a piece of paper; add your age at your birthday last year; multiply the result by 1,000 and subtract 677,423. Substitute for the figures letters of the alphabet, i. e., a for 1, b for 2, c for 3, etc., and read the result carefully.

Monday was pay day in all of the mills, and a good many thousand dollars was put into circulation. There is not a town in this section of the country as well off these times as is Rhineland. A good many of the lumbering concerns, some of them pretty pretentious firms, in this section, have been forced to pass pay day without the customary ceremony, simply because they couldn't get the cash, no matter how much property they had. Rhineland has fortunately not experienced any of that difficulty, and the men here who have work in any mill, have received their money promptly. Lumber towns are good towns anyway, but lumber towns in which the firms have an interest and pride in the place are better than any other kind. Despite the closeness of money, Rhineland goes right on building and improving every day.

Cy. C. Yawkey is now famous. The Timberman, of Chicago, has given him an illustration, which looks like a picture of Louis Lingg, before the explosion. It also writes him up in a manner calculated to bring a paid "ad" from the closest manager in the world. Among other things the write-up says he never read a piece of poetry; is a crack rifle shot; is stuck on the fair, and is liable to be cranky during business hours. Gentlemen of the Timberman, you will have to guess again on Mr. Yawkey. You haven't got only one thing correct, and you don't know which one that is. There is another Wisconsin valley man who seems to be an artist's mark, for his photo has been transferred into two or three of the lumber journals recently. It is D. D. Flanner, of the Rib River Lumber Co. He has not yet been subjected to such a write-up as Mr. Yawkey silently endured, but he has not yet been seen in Chicago by The Timberman. That paper is never right unless it's wrong.
